MR. MURRAY CORNWELL, star salesman for National Machine, Inc., was jubilant over the fact that last winter had been extremely profitable for his company. He was fighting equipment that had broken down, completely worn out. New plans were needed. Mr. Cornwell got there before the snows were forgotten.

At the city hall he was told by the clerk, "The council meets next week. But Mayor Howe has the final say on purchases. Better see him."

"Mayor Howe?" Cornwell liked to know a bit about a prospective customer before an interview. If he could find a common interest he was doubly sure of a sale. "Youngish looking fellow for his age, isn't he?"

"Well, yes."
"A go-getter?"
"Definitely." The clerk was enthusiastic. "Howe made such a success of his paper mill and did so much for the town that he has been officially shanghaied into the mayor's office."

"Doesn't need the money, though, does he?"
"No," the clerk said. "Still, the clerk leaned forward confidentially, 'they're just as common as you and I—both Jerome Howe and his missus.'"

"Jerome?" Cornwell asked. "Mr. Cornwell?"
"From Alabama?"
"Yes, from a little town here from Vermont twenty years ago."

"Oh," Mr. Cornwell's smile was rich. "Well, thanks." He turned away. "In his hotel room he sat down to meditate tonight. To think that the man who had the power to give him the job he wanted was the same Jerome Howe from Vermont twenty years ago."

"The next morning Mr. Cornwell swung breezily into the mayor's office. 'Well, Mayor,' he said. 'I have thought it over. I haven't seen you for over twenty years! Not since I did you the big favor of taking Miss Lorena Busby off your hands.'"

"Have a chair, Cornwell. It's been a long time."
"Yes, you sure hated me and I guess I thought I was smart. But not for long, Jerome."

"That so?" the mayor asked, savoring it. "What happened?"
"Lorena was the most mercenary creature God ever made," Mr. Cornwell declared fervently. "After she returned your diamond I bought her a new dress. She said she didn't like it. She said she was ashamed to be seen in it. I had to return it. I started to build us a house. Lorena wanted it ready and furnished before the wedding. By the time the plans pleased her, I had a mansion on my hands and she in debt up to her ears."

"I began to furnish. Jerome, I'm not meant to furnish. I was a tool. I went to New York and bought a living room rug that I thought was it for a queen. But it wasn't good enough for Lorena. She threw it on the rug and slammed out the door. I sold my stuff and left the state. I never saw Lorena again and I hope I never shall. You see, Jerome, what you have to be thankful for."

"I certainly, certainly do," the mayor said thoughtfully.
"Well, that's water under the bridge," Mr. Cornwell laughed and opened his catalogue. "Here's our 'Stow King.' Best place made. How many can Lake City use?"

"Er—just a minute," Mayor Howe answered his phone. "Excuse me, Cornwell. Be right back."

Mr. Cornwell hummed to himself as he got his order blanks ready. Mayor Howe's secretary came in and rearranged things on the desk. A photograph somehow was turned to that it faced Mr. Cornwell. His eyes popped. He suddenly felt sick. It was Lorena, still young and alive, yet twenty years! In a trembling voice he asked, "Who is the lady?"

The secretary smiled. "Oh, that's Mrs. Howe. Isn't she charming?"
"Every!" Mr. Cornwell agreed with shaking hands. He gathered up his papers and stuffed them into his brief case as fast as he could.

He was at the elevator when he heard someone call. "Hey, Cornwell, you went off without your order!"
"Well, I guess I talked too much, Mayor."

"Not at all," the mayor laughed. "You just told me how lucky I am. You see, I've always wondered whether Lorena married me on or off. I know now that it was for love. I was completely down and out when we were married. Our first home was one room in a cheap boarding house."

Buy Furniture Wisely
When buying a piece of furniture with glass doors, examine the inside of the door. If genuine mahogany, you must like each section of glass is an individual pane, held in place by carefully joined sections of wood. Beware the shoddy workmanship indicated by a glass door made of a single pane with a jigsawed pattern superimposed on the outside to imitate a wooden grille.

Soaring Costs Balk Building by Cities

Survey Shows Public Works Are Stalled Over Country.

CHICAGO.—Public works programs of many American cities have been stopped by the barrier of soaring construction costs, according to a survey by the U. S. Bureau of Public Works.

The "International City Managers' Association" said that in 1935, the cost of building a new city hall averaged $100 per square foot, compared with $150 per square foot in 1936.

A further rise in city funds, the association said, came from demands of city employees for wage increases and the necessity of extending some city services to new developments regardless of cost.

The association cited Muskegon, Mich., as a "typical example" of public works curtailment. Work on the city's sewage disposal plant was suspended because work estimated to cost $100,000 last year now would require a $200,000 outlay.

Barber, Calif., reported that it might have to raise water rates next year because the cost of constructing a new pumping station has become prohibitive. Grand Junction, Colo., rejected bids on a waterworks because inflation put costs above budget limits.

Berkeley, Calif., recently adopted a policy of selecting bids above normal price levels on all but "emergency" projects. The city announced postponement of construction of new municipal buildings for which plans have been completed.

Municipal pay increases and extension of essential city services to new residential districts slowed the public works programs of Long Beach, Calif., and High Point, N. C. Long Beach postponed building new fire stations and libraries while High Point curtailed its public works program.

Despite construction curtailments, more than half the cities surveyed had to increase taxes to meet their needs. In 1936, the average 1946 tax rates, but higher property valuations generally increased total revenues.

ROAD MISPLANS KILL 724 ALABAMIANS IN 1946
Montgomery.—The Alabama Department of Public Safety announced that 724 persons were killed on the highways of Alabama during 1946.

This figure represented a considerable increase over the 594 casualties of 1945. The state highway patrolmen investigated 5,991 accidents in which 3,140 persons were injured other than the number killed.

Make Paper by Hand
Hand paper making is still a sizable industry in Japan. A relatively modern machine can produce as much paper in 20 minutes as one that was used in 1900. The hand products are superior in strength and beauty.

Hazardous Industries
The number of persons killed as a result of accidents in hazardous industries is said to be more than twice as great per 100,000 workers as in city industries.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harper, John and Will Harper, Misses May, Fannie, Lillie and Vivian Harper, and Mrs. W. W. Sanders spent the past week and at their cottage at Santa Monica, Fla. They were joined by Fred Harper, Jr., and two young army friends, Walter Forter and Wayne Higley, who flew down from Fort Bragg, N. C., to Tynan Field, Fla.

Does Stomach Gas and Bloat Make You Feel Miserable?

If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in freeing your stomach from this nervous distress. It works this way: Bloating food enters the stomach, vital gastric juice must flow normally to break up certain food particles, else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a most distressing loss of appetite, uneasiness, flatulence, etc. To get real relief you must increase the flow of the vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have positively proven that SSS Tonic is the most effective in increasing the flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red blood cells, and thus, the result is a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula, which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in minute quantities, thus, the result is a healthy, vibrant, and healthy blood. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula, which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Avoid punishing yourself with over-doses of soda and other alkalis to counteract gas and bloating when what you do really need is SSS Tonic. It is the only food for body strength and health. Don't wait until it is too late to help your people. SSS Tonic has helped millions of homes with gas, a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today.

Does Stomach Gas and Bloat Make You Feel Miserable?

If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in freeing your stomach from this nervous distress. It works this way: Bloating food enters the stomach, vital gastric juice must flow normally to break up certain food particles, else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a most distressing loss of appetite, uneasiness, flatulence, etc. To get real relief you must increase the flow of the vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have positively proven that SSS Tonic is the most effective in increasing the flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red blood cells, and thus, the result is a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula, which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in minute quantities, thus, the result is a healthy, vibrant, and healthy blood. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula, which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Avoid punishing yourself with over-doses of soda and other alkalis to counteract gas and bloating when what you do really need is SSS Tonic. It is the only food for body strength and health. Don't wait until it is too late to help your people. SSS Tonic has helped millions of homes with gas, a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today.

LESSON TEXT—Amos 6:1-6, 11-14.
MEMORY SELECTION—Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live—Amos 5:14.

Social justice, though much spoken of in recent times, has been the concern of right thinking men ever since sin entered the world and ever since man's iniquity toward man. In the prophet Amos we find the eloquent and plain-spoken voice of one crying out against such conditions almost 800 years before Christ.

This lesson is one which is of utmost importance, because in our present-day struggle with social injustice we have come to assume that it is primarily a political or economic question.

The book of Amos and all other scriptures rightly gets at "the focus of infection," which is sin. Sin in the heart leads to sinful actions, and these inevitably involve others, thus bringing about social problems.

I. God Is Great and Just (vv. 6-9). Faced the little village of Tekoa and out of the wilderness in which he had been a herdsman came Amos, the man of God, to herald the prophecy of disaster upon the heads of the complacent people of Israel and to take up a lamentation over those in Israel living in luxury and prosperity.

It was true that the common people were being ground under the heel of cruel oppression, but who cared about the poor as long as they could be secured for tax to support the luxurious comforts and pleasures of the rich? A prosperity which does not reach the homes of the poor is not a real prosperity at all. When in addition it encourages the "haves" to oppress the "have-nots" it becomes a grave danger, a real cause for lamentation.

Over against the social sin and sorrow of his day Amos placed the shining and righteous God. The people were urged to seek him and his righteousness. Would they do it? The answer came quickly.

II. Men Are Small and Wicked (vv. 10-13).
"Thank God that it is not true of all men, but those of Amos' day and many are like them in our day," turned away in hatred of the one who dared to rebuke their wickedness.

Sin is always a horrible thing, but when men who have fallen into sin are responsive to correction and ready to repent and forsake their sin, there is hope. The thing which made Israel's state so serious in the sight of God and of his prophet was that they had only hatred for those who were bold enough to reprove them or to live among them according to God's standards (vv. 10, 13).

"They who will endure no criticism have slammed the door in the face of truth. When we get to the place where we cannot endure having our faults pointed out, we are on the way to moral collapse" (Doudney).

III. Men Should Hate Evil (vv. 14, 15).
God loves the sinner, even when he is in his sin. God wants to help him, and so pleads with him to hate the evil enough to forsake it, and love the good enough to turn to God in repentance.

God's Word condemns sin, but it also presents a remedy. In Christ we have the perfect, final, and complete answer to the sin question. Amos, speaking centuries before Christ, admonished Israel to repent and to turn away from the evil which they had cultivated with such assiduity, and to be equally zealous about doing good. In the hope that "it may be that the Lord God of hosts will be gracious" (v. 15).

How favored we are to be permitted not only to urge people to turn from evil to good, but to offer them the One who is the way, the truth, and the life.

Israel did not repent, but in folly depended on their religious ceremonies to satisfy an offended God. The prophet therefore declares that:

IV. God Hates Hypocrisy (vv. 21-24).
God had no pleasure in their religious observances and rites, because they were presented with unrepentant hearts and by hands which were soiled by the oppression of their fellow men.

Mark it well, God has no delight in the attendance upon church services, beautiful though they may be; he does not listen to the sweet strains of sacred music, nor does he accept the rich "offerings" of those who live in unrepentant sin and who pay for magnificent church buildings and beautiful church services with money gotten by crooked dealings and social injustice.

God is righteous, and God's Word always cuts right through the hypocrisy of men. Let us heed the plea of Amos, that righteousness should run through our personal and national life "as a mighty stream," and then we shall be ready both as individuals and as a people to worship him aright.
